Many of the world's pollution problems have been caused by the crowding of large groups of people into cities. Supply for the needs of the people leads to further industry pollution. If the rapid increase in human population continues at the present rate, there may be greater harm. Some scientists speak of the increase in number of people as "population pollution".

About 2000 years ago, the world's population was probably about 250 million. It reached a billion in 1850. By 1930 the population was two billion. If the population continues to grow at the same rate, there would be 23 billion people in the world a hundred years from now.

Man has been using the earth's resource more and more rapidly over the years. Some of them are almost gone. Now many people believe that man's greatest problem is how to control the growth of the population. The materials in the world will not support the human population in time to come, if the present rate of increase continues. Already there is overcrowding in the cities and hunger in some countries. Can man's rate of increase continue? Many people believe that human survival(生存) in the future depends on the answer to the question.

41. According to some scientists, "population pollution" means _____.

- A. the increase in human population
- B. people getting into cities
- C. the pollution caused by people
- D. the longer life of people

42. Pollution problems are mainly caused by _____.

- A. the crowding of large groups of people into cities
- B. the development of industry
- C. population growth rate
- D. Both A and B

43. Now many people believe that man's greatest problem is _____.
- A. how to find more resources
 B. how to control the growth of the population
 C. how to solve the problem of food and clothes
 D. how to raise the living standards of the people
44. The reason why we must control the growth of population is that _____.
- A. we will get rid of pollution in the world
 B. we hope to develop industry more rapidly
 C. we won't have enough materials to support people
 D. the industry growth rate is very slow
45. Which is NOT true according to the passage?
- A. The world's population was probably about 250 million 2,000 years ago.
 B. In 1930, the population was the same as that of 1850.
 C. The world is becoming more and more crowded.
